For Good of U.S.

To the Sentinel:

The Kennedy administration seems quite bent on putting a halt to the wave of patriotism surging across the country. This surge, if allowed to keep growing, would put the President and his bunch out of office.

Thus, we find it perfectly natural that he should be opposed to it. But the President is overlooking a very vital thing. He is not considering the good of the United States, but only the welfare of the Democratic Party and his own political career. To these two ends he has subjected everything else — even the welfare of America. In this respect the Kennedy administration is corrupt.

The President should be willing to give up the presidency and take the Democrats out of office if it is for the good of America — and it is! This is evidenced by the condition of our State Department, our Defense Department, CIA, and USIA. Ask Sen. Thurmond.

An example of the Kennedy administration's corruption (concern only for itself to the exclusion of the good of the American people), can be cited in two statements made by Robert Kennedy: On Sept. 23, 1961, the attorney general appeared on "Meet the Press" and was quoted as saying that "communist espionage in this country is much more active now than it has ever been." But in reply to a Hearst Headline question (Sentinel, Jan. 28, 1962) concerning the internal communist fight, he had this to say: "The communist party in the United States is at its lowest ebb."

Two conclusions can be drawn from these remarks. Conclusion No. 1: Robert Kennedy is telling the truth. Communism in the United States has gone from its highest level to its lowest level all in the space of four months. This, however, is highly unlikely as is evident from the very nature of the communist methods as J. Edgar Hoover points out in "Masters of Deceit."

Conclusion No. 2: Robert Kennedy is lying. But why? The reason is that he, in conjunction with the Kennedy administration, must downgrade the patriotic anti-communists in order to keep the Kennedy administration's prestige high.

Thus, we see Robert Kennedy and the Kennedy administration will do anything that's politically expedient in order to keep the Kennedy administration, as corrupt as it is, popular in the eyes of the people. They will even lie to the American people.
